I write you, not to justify, but to waive all defence, and hankly contess the weakness which, at times, has forme my down, and was calculated to bring discredit on my State and myself. It is my nature to be frank, and especially do I owe it to you who have showered tavors, and bonors up on my, to be so now. I will not attempt justification or excuse, especially when I have so often publicly and that men holding public trusts should be solver men. COOPERS' BELLOWS should be solver men. During twenty-seven years of political service—with the exception of those years when I totally abstained—I have often yielded to temptation and as often have suffered the pangs of mutterable remoter. I can say that, in a certain sense, my sin has been my punishment. To lose your respect might seem punishment enough, but you can sence imagine how a proud man feels when he has reason to dread the loss of all that readers his nature noble, and when itwould seem that fle even had withdrawn its favor from him on account of self-inflicted wrong.

that He iven had withdrawn its favor from him on account of self-inflicted wrong. It has been stid with what seems to me annecessary crucky. "It is perfectly useless to exact new pledges from one who has broken so many old ones." To this at ox me to reply that I have returned, and that I will compely our confidence not by pledges, but by a course of conduct scrupulously correct. I comprehend the situation perfectly. The happiness of my family, is respect and confidence of my friends, the descesse of my party, which to me is the triumph of His erry and good government, the honor of my state, the good opinion of mankind, my own life, and last and most important, the united future while approaches with starting rapidity; all

To those whose attention for mrs has hitherto survived the shock of repeated disappointments, I say, do not conceal from yousedwes, or longer attempt to shield me from deserved censure. I accept it as a just punishment, and shall not maximur. Those who find in my misfortanes occasion to congratulate thomselves upon the verifications of their prophecies of evil concerning me, and a justification for having opposed me, my not findity realize the wist which fathered their thoughts. As to my enemies, and those who destre my ruin and consequent resignation in order to the elevation of some one else to the place which I hold at your hands, and I hope they are few, they have my pity for the ignobleness of their schemes.

Conversation with Doyle.

The Montreal papers publish reports of the conversation between Whelan and Doyle, who occupied adjoining cells in the jail at Ottawa, on the 10th inst, as it is reported by Dotective Cullen and a prisoner named Heas, who overheard it. After speaking of persons he had seen in the Court room on that day, Whelan said to Doyle: "It'll go bloody hard with ms; I'll either swing or get penitentiary for life; I don't cure. I am prepared for the worst. That bugger Turner swore bloody hard aguinst me; swore we were prepared for the worst. That bugger Turner, worse bloody hard against me; swore we were of bloody Feniaus. There were fourteen wit-ressers examined; he swore that he was an Eng-ishman."

lishman."
Doyle-" You're in a had fix."
Whelan-" I don't care a damn; all I depend upon is a good jury."
Doyle often said-What will happen to me?
What will become of me? They can do nothing to me.

Wheian answered him nothing would happen
to him, as they could prove nothing against him, Doyle said—I wish you'd never done it, and i wish you never came near to me that night.
Whelan said—I would not have come near you too.

Doyle—what for?

Wichau—Fenianism; for firing the police barrack at Tullough, treland. What a fine family my mother had—what a fine lot of boys. One thing, they were foud of treland. One was shat at the fifting of the police harrack, one is in prison for the same, and filn here. Whelan then sang a couple of songs, and there was a long silence.

Boyle called him, saying, I do not know what they'll do with me.

Doyle said—No; they'll toose it. Whelan—We are four married men.
